Canterbury to Retire

Apartheid Foe New Leader?

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, 73, Archbishop of Canterbury, Tuesday announced he will retire May 31 after 15 years as spiritual head of the Anglican Church.

Among those mentioned as his likely successor are Bishop Robert Stopford of Peterborough, 59, and Archbishop Joost de Blank of Cape Town, 52, who made an international reputation as a foe of apartheid (racial segregation).

RECOMMENDATION

The Queen will nominate the successor on the recommendation of the prime minister. Dr. Fisher announced his decision in opening the Convocation of Canterbury. Prime Minister Macmillan's office said the primate will receive a life peerage from the Queen when he retires.

LORDS' SEAT

This means Dr. Fisher will continue to sit in the House of Lords where Anglican bishops traditionally hold a seat.

The archbishop, married with six sons, will receive a retirement pension of £2,000 when he leaves his £7,500 post. He is the 39th person to occupy the Throne of Augustine.

CONTROVERSIAL

Since his elevation to the archbishopric in 1946, he has been a controversial figure because of his outspoken views. Noted as a liberal in world affairs, he appealed in his first public statement as archbishop for the end of the color bar through the Commonwealth.

Last December, he held an historic meeting with Pope John, first such "summit" meeting between the Anglican and Roman Catholic leaders in more than 400 years.

'Why Can't My Kids Have Dog?'

MOUNT BRIDGES, Ont. (CP) — "I just want my kids to have a dog."

It was farmer Mac van Overloop speaking Monday after his children's newest pet, two beagle pups, were shot through the head.

HAPPENED BEFORE

His children are getting used to finding their dogs shot. They cried, though, when the beagles were found in the road outside the farm house near this London area village.

Mr. van Overloop said he has lost eight dogs, worth more than $500, in the same manner in the past five years.

PLACED IN ROAD

"Where do I go from here?" he asked. He said it appeared as though the dogs had been placed in the road after being shot to make it appear they had been killed by cars. Police are investigating.

"It's not the money that matters," the farmer said. "I had a dog when I was a boy. Why can't my kids have a dog?"

Hunger To Help Tigers?

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's "non-violence" Ahimsa party Tuesday threatened some of its leaders would fast from Saturday until Thursday unless the government calls off a tiger hunt Queen Elizabeth is scheduled to attend.

Telegrams from the party to Prime Minister Nehru, British high commissioner Sir Paul Gore-Booth and other officials said the fast would begin Saturday, when the Queen starts her Indian tour, unless the hunt were dropped. The Ahimsa party campaigns against animal slaughter and cruel sports.

The Queen and Prince Philip are to attend a tiger hunt near Jaipur Monday. They are likely to attend another during their visit to Nepal next month.

But officials here said the Queen's program would not be changed because of the protests.

Take Peaceful Course Says Major Document

MOSCOW (AP) — In a speech published Tuesday, Premier Khrushchev declares that victory of World Communism "is no longer far off."

War is not necessary to achieve the victory, Khrushchev said in a report Jan. 6 to a general meeting of party organizations in Moscow. But it will come, he warned, if capitalist nations try to resist the Communist victory — "inevitable by the laws of historical development."

The 20,000-word speech, considered one of the most important documents published in Moscow since the end of the Second World War, appeared in the magazine Kommunist.

DRAG INTO GRAVE

"The working class, which today governs a vast area of the world and in time will rule the whole world," Khrushchev said, "cannot allow the doomed forces (imperialism) to drag hundreds of millions of people into the grave with them."

One of the means for preventing a new war is the development of "peace-fronts" throughout the world, including pacifists of all political beliefs, he said.

PEACEFUL CO-EXISTENCE

Another is the policy of peaceful co-existence.

He said the policy of peaceful co-existence "facilitates the activities of the Communist party and other progressive organizations of the working class in the capitalist countries, makes it easier for the people to combat aggressive war blocs and foreign military bases and contribute to the success of the national liberation movement."

IMPERIALISTS FAIL

Khrushchev claimed that "the imperialists have in recent times failed to draw a single new state into their military bloc."

"In recent years the initiative in the world arena has belonged to the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, while the imperialist countries and their governments have had to keep on the defensive."

ADOPTED BY 81 NATIONS

In the speech, Khrushchev was laying down the official party interpretation of the declaration adopted by Communist parties of 81 nations at last fall's party summit conference.

That declaration maintained that war was not inevitable, and was considered a victory for Khrushchev in an ideological conflict with Communist China.

AVOID WAR

There was much talk of war in Khrushchev's address. He emphasized it was to Communism's advantage to avoid the annihilating thermonuclear conflict. It also opposed brush fire wars that might flame into world conflict.

But he put the full support of world Communism behind what he called wars of national liberation, such as in Algeria.

OTTAWA (CP) — American Cruz, Cuban ambassador to Canada, said Tuesday he expects a great increase in Cuba-Canada trade this year, and "we expect to be down to real trading inside a month."

Cuban trade commissioners have opened an office in Montreal, he said.

"We want everything above board and legal. We want no trouble with the Canadian government and do not expect any."

RCAF Defends Home Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — An air force spokesman, admitting the RCAF spent more than authorized on a commanding officer's house at St. Hubert, Que., said Tuesday the auditor-general included charges which inflated the figure.

The treasury board authorized $25,000 for the house and $9,950 for landscaping the grounds. Total cost, Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson said Monday, was $79,631.

SECOND BATHROOM

The RCAF spokesman said the nine-room, two-story frame house was modified from a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation design, and was finished to CMHC specifications except that a second bathroom, which was to have been left unfinished, was completed.

The treasury board accepted the air force's argument that the house for a station commander should be better than average married quarters for RCAF officers.

GOOD EXERCISE

The house, occupied by Air Vice Marshal W. R. MacBrien, was built by the RCAF's construction and maintenance staff, rather than an outside contractor, because the air force thought it would be "a good exercise" for the construction unit.

The spokesman said that in computing $79,631 as total cost, the auditor-general's staff included all costs incurred by inspectors and other service personnel.

ONLY INCIDENTAL

This was regardless of the fact their work was only incidental to regular jobs. Travelling expenses of inspectors were included, he said. "This is really not a true contractor, because the air

Foreign Aid

ONE has often wondered if the vast sums raised in the name of human welfare are properly expended among the people for whose benefit the donors have contributed. There are so many overlapping agencies nowadays that duplication and confusion seems inevitable.

This doubt is especially sharpened where overseas projects are concerned. How much is swallowed up in administrative and other expenses, for instance? Does the welfare aid really reach its legitimate destination? Are all those international agencies, some of them under the aegis of the United Nations, actually required? Is it only the underdeveloped people who are receiving the benefits?

It is at least surprising to learn that the ship taking back the Polish treasures to that country also unloaded 30,000 food packages purchased by the CARE organization from donations by Canadians and Americans, as well as $400,000 worth of other CARE commodities. One had never considered Poland to be in need of welfare help from this continent.

No doubt there are some people there in distress as there are everywhere but Poland is part of the European Communist bloc and in relation to its standards that bloc is at least as prosperous in its economy as the Western world. Certainly the foreign exploitation of Communist aims does not seem to be hampered by any lack of financial resources. As a totalitarian state Poland has an easier disciplinary method of looking after its own than have the democratic nations which are supplying this help.

One wonders now if the international agencies also send food parcels to Russia, or to any other states of the Soviet bloc. These are not underdeveloped countries needing assistance, such as Asiatic and African peoples suffering from malnutrition and a lack of the welfare amenities common to more fortunate lands. There are some individuals at home in North America indeed who may require assistance as much as do any citizens of the Communist bloc.

Charity does not necessarily begin at home and the willing outpouring from this continent of foreign aid is recognition of the humanitarian claims accepted as an obligation to help the underdogs of the world. The doubt is whether a great deal of this is not wasted or directed to the wrong hands.

Transition Period

THE Greater Victoria School Board is wise not to go ahead with its school building program while the education system of the province is in a state of flux. Until the government presents amending legislation, there is no way of knowing what the precise building requirements will be.

If the government should decide to accept the Chant commission's recommendation that the junior high schools be abolished there would have to be an extensive redistribution of accommodation. Elementary schools would be called on to provide classrooms for Grade 7, a level at which equipment requirements may be somewhat larger than in the lower grades. Then there would have to be considerable reshuffling of accommodation for the grades above, which would pass into high schools, dropping the prefix "junior".

If the government adopted in full the commission's plan for reorganization, incorporating vocational training schools among other revolutionary changes, then the rearrangement of accommodation and provision of new buildings would be a complex undertaking. Present plans prepared for submission early this year might have to be modified beyond recognition.

Even if the reorganization plan were not accepted, some of the recommendations if adopted by the government would necessitate another look at plans for the future. Abandonment of manual training and home economics, for example, would undoubtedly release space for other purposes.

Classroom requirements of future years are now predictable with a remarkable degree of accuracy, but while the Chant report remains on the table it is not possible to predict requirements at the different levels. For that reason the sooner the government's amending bill is put before the legislature the sooner school boards everywhere will be able to rearrange their plans.

The Greater Victoria school district is in a fortunate position due to the fact that whatever happens it should be able to take care of next September's influx of pupils. Beyond that, however, everything depends on the changes of policy made during the coming session—and there are almost certain to be some.

This is a difficult time for school boards everywhere; but transition periods between departure from old policies and the implementation of new always are.

An Uneasy Land

THE general strike in Belgium seems to be abating but its troubles may be beginning afresh as its constitutional unity is challenged. The latest move to upset the nation is a demand for a federation of two states as typified by the separate Flemish and French-speaking peoples of the country.

Belgian's recent disorders are unfortunately an example of chickens coming home to roost. It is an irony of fate in fact that they should parallel in some respects the events in its former colony of the Congo. There it was that lack of native training and preparation through the years for eventual independence prevented a transition of power peacefully if not cordially. In the result, the Congo is in chaos and Belgium itself has suffered from loss of its investment revenues in the African state.

This impelled the stringent economy measures of the government which are disputed by the socialist group which forced the strike. It also revived an ancient religious-racial conflict between the north and the south, the Flemish-Walloon divisions that have been in uneasy harness all along. At various times in Belgian history the difficulties between the two have brought the nation to perilous moments.

Now the socialist south is advocating a federation of the two areas, with each having its own autonomy in certain fields, a step that would ensure a socialist administration in the southern half of the country. A vexed constitutional problem thus faces Belgium as an aftermath of the strike that failed because the north did not join in. It is an uneasy land to which the young King Baudouin brought a Spanish bride only a few weeks ago.

Interpreting the News

U.S. Pocketbook Hit

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE cold war is hitting the United States hard where it hurts most—in the pocketbook.

At a time when President Eisenhower, now stepping down from office, would like to have shaved military outlays and perhaps leave a farewell gift of tax concessions, more is demanded of taxpayers as proposed defence expenditures rise to a peacetime high.

The huge U.S. defence outlay, estimated to climb to more than $42,000,000 in the 12 months ending in June, 1962, is one of those factors aggravating the American dollar and gold problem.

It threatens to unbalance the budget and add to a national debt that has reached mountainous proportions. As the debt rises, it tends to undermine world confidence in the American dollar and encourages the flight of investment funds to other countries.

The Eisenhower administration has tried to plug the drain on official gold reserves through a variety of dollar conservation measures. This still hasn't stemmed the flow and now there is talk of new measures.

Some changes in United States force deployments may become advisable in light of continuing studies of over-all U.S. programs," says Eisenhower in what seems to be a faint allusion to the possibility that the U.S. might have to withdraw some of its troops from Europe.

On the other hand, he reminds Congress that "the menace of Communist military strength is growing;" the North Atlantic alliance remains "vital" to the security of the U.S. no less than to the security of other NATO allies.

The incoming president, John Kennedy, is even more determined that American defence be increased; he wants to negotiate with the Communists from a position of strength and he feels that the U.S. has lagged behind the Communists especially in the field of missiles.

As a result, the U.S. is sure to increase pressure on its allies to lift some of the burden of military outlays from American shoulders.

"The recent improvement in the financial position of many of our allies has highlighted the need for greater sharing of this burden," Eisenhower says in his new budget.

State department authorities, amplifying this remark, say they are satisfied with Canada's contribution to North Atlantic defence.

The British Scene

"Well, how did little Miss Bluit get on with her new class?"

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

AN ancient theme has found voice again. An editor below the Mason-Dixie line says that Canada should become the 51st state of the United States. There is no "should" about it, of course, even if he is unaware of Canadian sentiment, but no doubt he thinks this would be conferring a great favor.

This is usually the belief of those who would swallow up other nationals.

The South Carolina man says that with their combined resources Canada and the U.S. would have the "monolithic" power needed when totalitarianism "threatens free men." And so it might if bigness is to be the criterion of the world. It apparently escapes him that in the process Canada would lose its freedom.

The proposal has some ironic contrast, albeit to the multiple entrance into the United Nations of a plethora of small African nations, some of them with half the population of British Columbia or not too much larger in area than Vancouver Island. They create the antithesis of a monolithic structure but are welcomed for their separateness as independent countries.

The UN does not envisage a one-worldness of political power and empire, obviously.

As a further plea for absorption of Canada by the United States—the inevitable consequence to annexation under the guise of statehood—the Charleston editor says that Canada is in the same boat as the South—his own South, presumably—and than an independent Canada is "no more sensible" than an independent South. It depends on who is being sensible, naturally. An independent South is only a dream below the Mason-Dixie line; that question was settled a hundred years ago and the American South is an integral part of the whole United States. Independence is a reality and not a dream for Canada, and this country aims to hold to that reality.

Our editor friend—such proposals are made in friendship even if with a biased eye—is not very complimentary to us, however. If Canada is such a desirable addition to the U.S. family it surely rates a better offer than being merely a single state of the Union.

The terms are rather stingy. Why not ten states, for instance?

If bigness is to be the criterion the physical extent of Canada deserves something better. All of the U.S.A. could be contained within the boundaries of this country, with a little left over. Perhaps the North Carolina man hasn't looked at the map lately. It would hardly be seemly therefore that this nation, as well as losing its identity, should have no more say in the senior congressional house, the Senate, than the state of Connecticut, Delaware or Rhode Island, any one of which could be tucked away on Vancouver Island.

That would be a very one-sided bargain indeed.

In the House of Representatives there would be a slightly better deal because membership is on an apportionment basis, at the moment roughly one seat for every 350,000 persons. But even here the 51st state, if it were Canada, would not show up very strongly.

Together California and Texas alone approximate the Canadian population and so would have equal influence at the seat of power in Washington, D.C. The Canadian voice, it is apparent, wouldn't reverberate very loudly.

All this takes no account of the Canadian institutions that would fall by the wayside—the parliamentary system, the judicial processes, the pattern of Canadian habit and thought; the whole ethos of the nation and its way of life.

That life is much different from American life in spite of television, radio, magazines and the other mass mediums of communication. It is compounded of the spirit, too, which is something the American editor may not understand.

These proponents of American annexation of Canada don't seem to realize that other nationals may not be pining to grasp U.S. citizenship. To them the ultimate in life is to be an American. From their standpoint that is an estimable destiny, but other peoples have their own ideas about what is best for them.

To be a Canadian is equally desirable in Canadian eyes, although it seems hard to convince some of our neighbors that this can be so.

Risk of Over-Centralization

Trustees Must Have Autonomy

From the Chant Report on Education in British Columbia

SEVERAL of the statements in this report may have conveyed an impression to some readers that the commission has found much to criticize regarding the British Columbia public school system. Certainly, a number of features of the system have been criticized, but the results from the commission's lengthy and thorough investigation have not revealed a widespread failure on the part of the schools of the province.

The terms of reference of the commission required that inadequacies be probed and that recommendations be made for improvement in the light of modern conditions. Such an assignment could not have been fulfilled without definitely looking for faults. The fact that shortcomings have been disclosed should not lead to any presumption that the British Columbia public school system has been judged to be unsound. The commission has not found cause to disparage the work of the schools or to disparage the way in which the system has been operated. It may be said that those who have supervised and directed the development of the public school system have effectively disposed of many of the problems with which they have been confronted, and have wisely avoided going to some of the extremes that have occurred elsewhere.

Nevertheless, no school system can ever be taken as the ideal or final one. No human institution has ever been perfect in all respects. Those who are engaged in the field of education know this, and are continually seeking better means for teaching the young, with full understanding that any improvement that is brought about can never be taken as final or remain unaltered.

Education is not a mechanical process, and the individuality of the pupils does not permit their education to be carried out by fixed rules-of-thumb. How convenient, but how sterile and unprofitable it would be if one could say to teachers, "Do this and so and you can count upon such and such a result."

But life would indeed be dull and unfruitful if people were all cast in the same mould. Educators must always have regard for the individuality of the pupils, and this precludes the application of any cut-and-dried educational methods. An educational system that endeavors to keep on turning out all the pupils in a common mould would produce nothing but mediocrity. In such a wide-flung and sparsely populated province as British Columbia, regional differences of many sorts are bound to arise, and the school system must admit of these.

Furthermore, the responsibilities assigned under the Public Schools Act to local school boards provide for the recognition of regional differences. Far from favoring any curtailment of such local autonomy, the commission maintains that it must be preserved in order that the schools may continue to be an integral part of the communities they serve.

A bureaucratic school system could enforce uniformity, but at the expense of public interest and local initiative. In such a wide-spread organization as the public school system, the danger of over-centralization must always be recognized and avoided in order that local responsibility may be encouraged.

Notwithstanding this, the department of education should employ every means to ensure that educational opportunities in all parts of the province are as nearly equivalent as they can be made. The commission looks upon this as a matter of first concern, and some of the recommendations made in this report have a direct bearing upon the equality of educational opportunity.

From the studies of the educational systems of other provinces and countries, the commission concludes that all school systems have at least one thing in common: they are all confronted with similar problems. The most recent reports from England, other countries of the Commonwealth, the U.S.A., the U.S.S.R., Scandinavian countries, France, Germany, Japan and others, all make reference to current dissatisfactions with their school systems.

The problems that are stated are very similar, and appear to be indigenous to any system that is striving to meet the educational needs of the modern world. Certainly the problems of the British Columbia school system are no more critical than those in other regions, and some of them appear to have been dealt with more successfully here than elsewhere.

Any detailed comparisons between various school systems are made difficult by differences of regional and cultural background and tradition. For example in some of the briefs attempts were made to compare British Columbia school systems with that of England. But it was seldom made clear just what aspect of the English system was being referred to—the grammar schools, the modern schools, the technical schools, or the public schools. There are wide differences between these which make general comparisons rather meaningless.

English educational authorities with whom members of the commission discussed such matters were fully aware of the wide differences within the English system, and as Sir Eric James, headmaster of the Marist Grammar School stated in an article on "Science in Education: An English View," "Both these aspects of English education—its selective character and the degree of specialization it allows—are subjects of controversy and criticism."

A number of educational authorities and interested persons from Great Britain, other countries of the Commonwealth, the United States, France, Holland, Belgium and Japan, with whom members of the commission discussed the matter, all agreed that the pupils in the schools of their countries were deficient in the use of their native language and in arithmetical skills.

These comments sounded very familiar to members of the commission. Although these are matters of real concern, they are not unique to the schools of this province. On the basis of what information was available, the commission reached the general conclusion that, in view of the cultural traditions and the economy of the province, the British Columbia public school system compares quite favorably with that of any other country.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

AROUND the year 1800 it was the wholesalers who dominated the commercial life of Canada, who told the storekeepers what they could have to sell, and who decided, indeed, what the public wanted. The wholesalers were the wealthy men of the community. They were the authority. And the public took what they were offered.

But by 1900 a new authority asserted itself. Communication with foreign sources of goods became much improved by rail and steamship. The merchants began telling the wholesalers what they wanted. They took to displaying advertising in a lavish fashion. It was the merchants who now told the public what it could have, and it was a much more diversified range of goods than the old wholesalers had been willing to stock up with formerly. Somewhere in this shift of authority it occurred to the manufacturers to get into direct touch with the public, too. And now we have the situation in which the manufacturers are seizing the authority away from the merchants.

Who will tell the public what it wants? Apparently the public itself doesn't know what it wants.

Letters to the Editor

Used as Dice

May I congratulate you on your editorial, "Dangerous and Misleading."

The strange utterances of Lester B. Pearson, leader of the Liberal Party, could be brushed aside as petulant, childish nonsense, ejected from a tired and stale mind, were it not for the fact that he, who for the time being holds a position of significance in the political field, pronounces not only for himself, but for those who have endorsed his leadership.

At a Liberal Party rally in Victoria, just before the decline and fall of his government, I challenged him on the subject of the Berlin air lift (June 28, 1948-May 11, 1949), an operation second only to the Battle of Britain, so far as the survival of the West was concerned.

I asked: "Why was it that during this long, complex and vital operation, while the Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans flew with the Royal Air Force, there were no Canadians present from the air arm?"

After I had been subjected to a sustained bout of boating and cat-calls, he answered with the remarkable statement:

"Because no one asked us, and we had other things to do."

Could anything be more enlightening, from the centre of policy? Quite naturally, after 34 years in uniform, I hold a deep regard for the fighting services, without which we should have been but clay in the hands of Germany and her allies.

I can think of nothing more calculated to undermine morale and esprit-de-corps in the small but excellent defence forces of Canada than that they should be used as dice, in a casino peopled with lunatics.

P. C. LIVINGSTON.

Slowpoke Drivers

Your editorial on "Slowpoke Drivers" is the second one in recent weeks on this subject. It would appear that you are definitely prejudiced in this matter. The answer to the question at the end of the first paragraph is definitely "Yes." Very recently according to the press the police were "out to catch the so-called slowpoke driver."

But not all slow drivers are worthy of the attention of the police. I personally dislike to be forced to drive over 40 miles per hour, but when I am keeping to that speed I scrupulously get over to the side of the road to allow any faster driver to pass if he wishes. I am quite satisfied that a large percentage of so-called "slowpokes" do the same.

However, to say that the shoulders of the Pat Bay Highway are wide enough to permit cars travelling at 50 miles per hour or over, to take them in safety is ridiculous. I venture to say that a 50 mph driver, forced over to the shoulder to permit a 60 mph driver to pass, would have to be a very good driver indeed to keep out of trouble.

The truth is that there are practically no two-lane highways in British Columbia that are fit for a speed of 60 mph, and that fast drivers are responsible for far more accidents (percentage-wise) than slowpoke drivers. In this I prefer to accept the opinion of the superintendent of motor vehicles (dedicated to the safety of human life) rather than that of the minister of highways—and also the statistical proof which can be adduced.

MAURICE HESFORD.

2568 Dufferin Avenue.

Editor's note: Shoulders of the Patricia Bay Highway have been unofficially tested by cars of various weights, driven by both men and women, and found to be safe and comfortable for travel at a speed of 50 miles an hour. Recently a line of about 25 cars travelling south from the ferry and held up by a slow driver, was clocked for a distance of seven miles at an average speed of 28 mph, where either 50 or 60 mph is permitted.

The U.S. has a guarantee for at least 60 years that Columbia waters rising in the Columbia will continue to flow through the vast $3,500,000,000 complex of power installations on the U.S. part of the river.

"A symbol of intelligent partnership," declared Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in Washington for the signing with President Eisenhower. Work on the nine-year Canadian program is to start as soon as possible.

Next step will be approval of the treaty by Parliament and Congress before final ratification. Actual construction may not start in 1961.

The federal and B.C. governments still need a separate agreement on finances and the sharing of authority.

As expected, the treaty bans the grandiose A. G. L. MacNaughton plan for diverting the Columbia into the Fraser River.

Canadian salmon interests said the diversion would kill the Fraser's big salmon run. Changes in the treaty benefit Canada, government officials indicated.

A dam one means more operating flexibility for the three-dam Canadian storage system.

ON CALL BASIS

Canada would provide, on an "on call" basis and within limits of existing facilities, additional protection against floods in the U.S.

For each of the first four such calls by the U.S., payment of $1,875,000 will be made to Canada by the U.S. Compensation would be made in cash or power for any loss of Canada power as a result of such flood calls.

Officials called this a "very great improvement."

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York's tugboat strike spread ashore with a vengeance Tuesday, halting all New York Central Railroad traffic and forcing 40,000 commuters to seek other means of transportation.

Strike of 660 Hudson River boatmen had already hit 30,000 New Jersey ferry boat commuters.

The Central's service cut-back came after trainmen refused to cross picket lines in Grand Central Terminal. The Central is one of 11 railroads which operate barge and ferry service from Manhattan Island to New Jersey.

'Bold Test' On Salmon Red Success

LONDON (Reuters)—Soviet experts have succeeded in the "bold experiment" of getting Pacific salmon to live and spawn off northern Scandinavia and Russia, Tass said Tuesday.

In scale and significance, it was the biggest experiment of its kind ever made, Tass said.

Hump-backed salmon fry, most numerous and quickest propagating in the Pacific, were released in the North Atlantic and returned to spawn in the White and Barents Seas.

Farmers Told

Dairy Crisis Over If More Milk Sold

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian dairy industry's main efforts must be toward boosting consumption, the president of the National Dairy Council said Monday.

Pierre Cole of Ottawa, whose organization represents the processors in the dairy business, told the Dairy Farmers of Canada convention the situation facing them is a selling program rather than a production problem.

"Our problem is one of under-consumption," he said, quoting figures which showed milk production continuing to increase annually while consumption drops.

In 1945, he said, per capita consumption was 1,233 pounds of milk a year. In 1960 it was 943 pounds.

"Startling as it may seem," Mr. Cole said, "if in 1960 we had been able to maintain per capita consumption at the level of just 15 years ago, an increase of more than 5,000,000,000 pounds of milk would have been required to meet the domestic demand.

This would represent 28 per cent more milk than the total produced last year."

He favored more research and advertising, not legislative production controls.

Flood Peril Eases

VANCOUVER (CP) — The flood danger in southwest B.C. has eased. Most of the 150 evacuated families returned to their homes in the worst-hit areas on Vancouver Island and in the Fraser Valley.

Preliminary estimates of property loss in the weekend floods was placed at more than $2,500,000.

Duncan, Alberni and Cowichan reported heavy property loss. At Duncan property loss was placed at $60,000—a total of $50,000 listed for private property and $10,000 for public works. Total damage to Island communities may reach $200,000.

Stainless Steel Design Awards Committee

STAINLESS STEEL DESIGNS WIN AWARDS IN WORLD-WIDE COMPETITION

Canada's National Industrial Design Council sponsors international competition in stainless steel design

Canadian industrial designers and the Canadian public are getting an exciting look at some striking examples of stainless steel design. They are the award-winning designs in the exhibition now touring Canada.

Stainless steel has a rich, silvery lustre, plus strength, corrosion and heat-resistant qualities that make it an ideal material for industrial designers. It can be fashioned into gracious flatware and holloware for the dining table, practical, easy-to-clean pots and pans, sinks and kitchen utensils, architectural components for the exterior of modern buildings, bright, beautiful hardware and ornamental accessories for the interior.

Nickel in stainless steel helps strengthen it, increases its resistance to heat and corrosion, makes it easier to shape and fabricate.

Canada is the world's largest producer of nickel. And Inco, through world-wide sales, market development and service operations, has developed world markets for Inco nickel.

Crofton Site of New Plant

By HARRY YOUNG

Colonist Business Editor
B.C. Forest Products Ltd. will build a $25,000,000 newsprint mill adjacent to its pulp mill at Crofton. A start is to be made later this year for completion in early 1964.

It will bring work for 500 people during construction and create 150 permanent new jobs thereafter.

It will be Vancouver Island's biggest single construction job in four years, and is another step towards establishing Vancouver Island as one of Canada's major producers of newsprint.

When the new Crofton mill, with 700,000 ton daily capacity, (127,750 tons a year) is completed, Vancouver Island will have three newsprint mills with a production potential of over 500,000 tons a year.

Until the Elk Lake Falls mill was completed in 1952, the island had no newsprint industry at all. Now Crown Zellerbach's Elk Falls turns out 160,000 tons a year and the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River plant at Port Alberni produces 215,000 tons.

The announcement of the new mill was made by C. D. Dickey, Jr., president of B.C. Forest Products, shortly after Monday's annual general meeting of the company in Vancouver.

Mr. Dickey said Crofton was the ideal site for the new mill and added that although the present newsprint facilities were sufficient to meet the current level of consumption, his firm estimated that demand for newsprint would increase steadily in the next few years so that a ready market for newsprint from Crofton would be found when production starts in 1964.

At the same time B.C. Forest Products said it would not rebuild the firm's sawmill at False Creek, Vancouver, which was totally destroyed by fire last summer, but will concentrate the sawmilling operations at its island mills in Victoria and Youbou which are working somewhat under capacity.

The newsprint mill will be adjacent to the 500-ton-a-day bleached sulphate pulp mill which was opened in 1958, and has since provided work for about 300 people in the Duncan and North Cowichan area.

The decision was hailed yesterday by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, and by civic officials in the Cowichan Valley.

No details have been given yet of the method by which the new mill will be financed, but it is expected that part of the cost will be borne by the company's associates, Scott Paper Company and Mead Corporation of Dayton, Ohio.

Huge Log Jam Diverts Creek

A half-mile-long log jam formed at this bridge over Meade Creek on North Shore Road during the flood and blocked water so it was forced over the road nearby and nearly swept occupants of two cars and a truck to their death. (See photo to left.) Logs and water all but wrecked the home, a mile south, of truck driver William Hughes on Lower Youbou Road. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Five Marooned

Five passengers were marooned in one of these cars, and the truck, later abandoned, two miles west of Cowichan Lake when log jam diverted Meade Creek over blacktopped highway where the truck rests. — (Photo by W. H. Gold, Youbou.)

Home Falls

Village Comes To Aid

LAKE COWICHAN—A man who seems to be followed by misfortune is being helped by Legion members and donations from residents of this flooded village.

William Hughes and his three children were forced out of their home on Lower Youbou Road when it was pounded by logs and knocked down by an offshoot of rampaging Meade Creek.

SWEPT OUT

One end of the foundation was knocked right out. Everything in the basement, including a full storage freezer, was swept out and lost. A resident said a huge cavity was left under the house.

Friends said Hughes was "just getting back on his feet" after the death of his wife Agnes and a daughter, Loretta, 3, on June 16, 1959, near their home when a small car in which they were riding was crushed under a loaded chip truck.

PROPPING HOUSE

Legion president R. E. Weismiller said, "He was a member and did a lot for the club. Members have been working voluntarily propping up the house. I understand the floors and everything else are heavily waterlogged."

It was home for Mr. Hughes and his three surviving children, Alfred, Louise and Michael.

Meade Creek burst its banks early Sunday when logs jammed the bridge on North Shore Road and the Canadian National Railway trestle three miles west of here and forced the torrent over the road west of the bridge.

When the three-foot wall of water and debris cascaded over the road it swept two cars and a truck into a 15-foot gully between the road and track.

SAVED DRIVERS

RCMP Cpl. Bert Giberson with volunteer firemen R. E. Weismiller and William Chappell went into the churning mess with a rowboat and pulled driver Lorne Friesen and his passenger Robert Carlson, both of Duncan, to safety with Joe Orsman, Youbou, the driver of the second car.

They reached Stan Winter, Youbou, just as his truck rolled into deeper water.

No School Again Today

LAKE COWICHAN—Schools in District 67 are to be closed again for a third day today due to flooding in the area, but there is a strong possibility children will go back to school tomorrow.

Sooke commercial fishermen claim a proposed curtailment of commercial trollers, seiners and gill-netters in the William Head to Port Renfrew waters from July 16 to Sept. 23 will have a disastrous effect on the business economy of Sooke.

They say the closures, which would provide for only 18 days of commercial fishing — Mondays and Tuesdays only from July 16 to Aug. 19; Mondays only from Aug. 20 to Sept. 2; and Mondays and Tuesdays only from Sept. 3 to Sept. 23 — would mean that more than 200 boats will not find it worth while to base at Sooke this year.

Grocery stores, gasoline dealers, taxis and other Sooke businesses will suffer, they claim.

Some 90 Sooke trollers have signed a petition, which will be presented by a delegation in Vancouver on Thursday, to Senator Thomas Reid, Canadian vice-chairman of the Pacific International Fisheries Commission, which is scheduled to finalize this year's fishing regulations at a meeting in Vancouver on Friday.

The petition, among other things, asks that a five-day week, eliminating Saturdays and Sundays, be introduced in place of the proposed regulations.

This, Ed Banner, spokesman for the trollers, told the Colonist, would eliminate the weekend fishermen — the city businessmen moonlighters who work at regular jobs during the week and fish commercially at weekends.

"They have gotten so bad that bona fide fishermen have given up fishing at weekends," Mr. Banner said. He said there would be 60 or 70 boats trolling Sooke waters on weekdays and up to 1,000 on Sundays.

Colonist investigations disclosed 500 of the weekend fishermen would be sportsmen and the rest $1 a year moonlighters.

Sooke fish buyer and fisherman Ray Vowles said that during the peak of the last pink (thumpback) salmon season in 1959 (this will be another pink year) one buyer bought 9,000 pounds of fish on Friday, Aug. 21, but 12,497 pounds on Saturday, Aug. 22, and 17,342 on Sunday, Aug. 23.

This, he observed, showed the effect of weekend moonlighters on Sooke fishing. He said bona fide fishermen would like to see moonlighters eliminated in the interest of conservation.

"Why do they pick on our area? We think conservation should start at the Fraser River," fisherman William T. Locke said.

The petition points out that the 18-day fishing proposals could be further cut by bad weather making fishing impossible. The proposed restrictions are the most stringent ever imposed on trollers.

Most of the commercial troll-caught fish are caught in the Sooke area and they are the prime of the pack and fresh fish markets, the petition observes, and claims a curtailment will naturally divert this prime catch to the U.S.A.

The petition asks that a proposal to limit fishing from sunrise to sunset be altered to daylight to dark, as it was before. The new proposals would cut out three or four hours of the best fishing time, Mr. Locke argued.

Aussies Fight Back

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Australia, just 13 less than they trailed, battled its way back scored in their first innings. Into the thick of the third cricket Test Match against the West Indies Tuesday but still trailing 282 runs today for victory with eight wickets standing.

An unbroken third-wicket partnership of 99 between Neil Harvey and Norman O'Neill revived Australian hopes after the West Indies had set the home team the task of getting 484 runs in the second innings for victory.

Gerry Alexander, with 108, earlier sparked the West Indies to a second-innings score of two wickets. The West Indies, trying to square the series, claimed the wicket of Bobby Simpson when the Australians had scored 37 in their second innings, then took Colin McDonald's wicket at 83. But Harvey (84 not out) and O'Neill (33 not out) played Australia right back into the game with a partnership of 99 runs in 80 minutes. At the close of play the Australians had racked up 812 runs for to a second-innings score of two wickets.

NHL All-Star Positions Almost Set

MONTREAL — Barring a big letdown or a spectacular second-half performance by someone, the National Hockey League all-star club for the 1960-61 season was named in the first half voting.

Two votes, one at mid-season and the other at the end of the season, are taken in the NHL, and the official all-star team is made up of the six players who poll the best combined point total for their positions.

It's a system designed to protect players who played stand-out hockey in the first half of the season and then were overlooked when a rival came up with a great finish. This time, selectors were so unanimous that five players are all but a foregone conclusion.

Points are awarded on a 5-3-1 basis with each of the 18 selectors — three from each city naming three players for each position. No one got the maximum of 90 points in the first-half vote but five players received 80 or more points.

Topping the poll were right-winger Norm MacMillan of Montreal Canadiens and left-winger Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs. Both received 87 points.

Next was Johnny Bower, the ageless Toronto goalkeeper. He received 84 points.

Booster Party

Victoria Cougar Booster Club, with not too much to cheer about these days, will celebrate anyway by holding a party Saturday at Liberal Hall, 1322A Government Street, beginning at 8.30 p.m. and, although Chicago's Glen Hall has been playing great goal in recent games, Bower will take a huge lead into the second vote.

On defence, Doug Harvey, the veteran artist of Montreal Canadiens, was far ahead with 80 points. Detroit's Marcel Pronovost was next among the defencemen with 50 points, and this was good enough for a 17-point lead over Toronto's Carl Brewer, third in the voting for this position.

Completing the first team was Montreal's Jean Beliveau, who received 80 points for an allegedly New York, defencemen unexpectedly large lead over Johnson and Leo Bolvin of his main rival for the centre position — teammate Henri Richard.

Completing the second club along with Hall, Brewer and Richard were left-winger Dick Moore of Montreal, right-winger Gordie Howe of Detroit and defenceman Allan Stanley of Toronto. Stanley had a half-point lead over Montreal's Tom Johnson.

Third in the balloting, and all with a chance of eventually winding up on the second team when final results are in, was Montreal's Jean Beliveau, who received 80 points for an allegedly New York, defencemen unexpectedly large lead over Johnson and Leo Bolvin of Boston, centre Norm Ullman of Detroit, left-winger Bobby Hull of Chicago and right-winger Andy Bathgate of New York.

Players named to the final all-star team each receive $1,000 while runners-up receive $500. In almost all instances, the cash awards are matched by the clubs.

Fuel Deal

Low Bid
Upsets
Unity

First attempt at co-operative Greater Victoria municipal purchasing hit a snag yesterday when one oil company offered Victoria city individually a better gasoline price than others offered for Victoria, Saanich and the water board combined.

City council public works committee recommended rejection of all tenders and calling of new tenders for supply of gasoline to the city only.

Invited to tender on supplying fuel, five companies submitted bids on joint basis, but Imperial Oil Ltd. submitted separate bids to each party—and a bigger discount than the lowest combined bid.

Assault Charge

Stepmother
Of Girl, 3
In Custody

Mrs. Margaret Hill, 25, stepmother of a three-year-old child now fighting for her life in Royal Jubilee Hospital, was arrested yesterday morning by Ucluelet RCMP on a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm.

The child, Leslie Hill, was brought to hospital in Victoria by plane and taxi last week, suffering head injuries. She has undergone surgery here, and remains unconscious for the most part, in serious condition.

LITTLE CHANGE

Yesterday her condition was reported "little changed." Leslie lived with her father, small brother and stepmother at Long Beach, between Todino and Ucluelet on the island's west coast.

REMANDED IN CUSTODY

Following her appearance in court yesterday, Mrs. Hill was remanded in custody pending arrangements for bail, which has not yet been set.

The young woman lived formerly on the Ahousat Indian Reserve, where her parents still live. She was Hill's second wife. His first wife, who is the injured child's mother, lives in Victoria with a third child.

Little Rain
Little Sun
Just Ahead

Clouds and occasional light rains can be expected for the next several days, with periods of partial clearing and calm in between, weatherman William Mackie said last night.

Storms rolling in from the Pacific now are showing a tendency of swinging northwards toward the Gulf of Alaska, he said.

Child Expert
To Talk Here

Dr. H. G. Dunn, associate professor of pediatrics at UBC and an authority on the emotionally disturbed child, will be speaker at the third public meeting of the recently organized Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Meeting will be at the city health centre, 1947 Cook, at 8 p.m. Friday.

New Varsity Block
Open to All Tonight

The general public is invited this evening to inspect the new E. B. Paul building on the campus of Victoria University. Premier W. A. C. Bennett will open the new classroom and faculty office block at 7:45 p.m. today and invited guests will tour the building immediately after the ceremony. Guided tours for the public begin at 7:30 p.m.

Torrent Scatters Eggs

Storm Aftermath

Generation
Of Salmon
Decimated

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

Sunday rains, which turned Goldstream into a wild, roaring river which overflowed its banks at several points and dredged out new courses, may have killed off more than 40 per cent of this fall's coho and chum salmon spawn.

In addition, thousands and thousands of coho fingerlings from the 1959 spawn, which were still in the river and not scheduled to enter the ocean until June or July, may have been stranded in receding flood pools, or washed to sea in the raging torrent.

FELT FOR YEARS

Full effect of Sunday's damage will be felt in 1963 for coho salmon and in 1964 for chum salmon.

Damage was undoubtedly repeated in all island and mainland streams to a greater or lesser degree—the bigger the river the less the damage is likely to be felt.

Effect on spring salmon runs from the San Juan, Sooke and other rivers will be felt in 1964 and 1965 when the salmon will be returning to their spawning streams.

HISTORY'S WORST

Sunday's floods could mean that the 1963 and 1964 salmon fishing years will go down as the worst in history.

And to make matters worse flash floods Dec. 7 and 8 in 1956 hit the same cycle-run of chum salmon as were hit in Sunday's flooding. The new floods could almost wipe out the chum run from this area.

CONDUCT SURVEY

Yesterday, the Colonist, in company with federal fisheries officer Harry Burrow, conducted a preliminary survey of the effect of Goldstream flooding.

Fisheries officers will conduct more thorough surveys of damage on all rivers and streams, as soon as waters recede enough to make such surveys practical.

At Goldstream we found thousands of salmon eggs stranded high and dry in acres of mud. We dug into silt and found more and more eggs.

Some of the eggs were alive and had started to hatch as a result of the mild winter experienced so far. But nothing could be done to save the eggs.

Coho fingerlings flitted about in pools that would dry up as soon as the winter recedes. The whole course of the river had been changed and spawning beds, that before the floods were quiet stretches, may dry up as the Goldstream takes to its new course.

This year there had been a light to fair run up the Goldstream—about 2,000 chums and 500 coho, which would have laid about 2,800 eggs each.

High hopes Fisheries officials had been in high hopes for a bumper return to the sea.

But their hopes faded yesterday as hundreds of sea gulls, merganser ducks, kingfishers and water ouzels flitted about the lower reaches gobbling up salmon eggs by the thousands.

CAN'T BE SAVED This was nature . . . and nothing could be done to help. We found salmon eggs high and dry as far as 100 feet from the main river.

Not only had the raging river scoured the upper spawning beds, washing the eggs downstream, but it had also carried with it tons of silt, which covered the spawning beds in the lower reaches of the Goldstream.

GREAT UPSET "It is a great upset to us," said Mr. Burrow. "You get a strike like this and there is no salmon to spare. This is why we like to have some salmon. In the bank so to speak, and get as many up the river as we can."

Measles Attack
Mounting Here

Greater Victoria's measles onslaught appears to be continuing unabated, Victoria-Esquamalt health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy said yesterday. In the week ended Jan. 16, Dr. Mahaffy said, 64 cases were reported in Victoria-Esquamalt and 131 in Saanich and South Vancouver Island health district.

Committee

Meter
Spread Backed

Extension of the two-hour metered parking area in the city in preparation for the one-hour metered area was approved yesterday by council's public works committee.

The committee also recommended to council that it adopt a bylaw to set aside, in a special fund for parking development, all net meter revenue each year in excess of the equivalent of one mill of taxation. One mill this year will be about $83,000, and net revenue last year—all used to relieve taxation—was $80,921.

EXTENSION BYLAW

A bylaw must also be passed before extension of the two-hour metered area can go into effect.

But the committee approved in principle the installation of two-hour meters on View between Quadra and Vancouver, on Courtney and Broughton from Blanshard to Quadra, on Blanshard from Courtney to Burdett, and on Quadra from Fort to Burdett. It also approved changing the meters on Fort between Blanshard and Quadra from two hours to one hour.

PARKING LOT, TOO?

The new rate of five cents a half-hour will apply only where the parking limit is one hour, and possibly—a decision to be made by council—on the city's Cormorant Street parking lot, where the limit is three hours.

Saanich

Coach Line
Changes
Unopposed

Proposed bus schedule changes for the Sidney and West Saanich areas met no resistance last night from Saanich lands and planning committee.

A spokesman for Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. said the firm will apply for Public Utilities Commission permission to reduce the number of runs because of a steady decline in the number of passengers during the past two years.

Committee will recommend to council that no objection be filed against the firm's application to the PUC.

Army Chief
To Visit
Pearkes

Maj. Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, general officer commanding the army's Western Command, will visit Victoria tomorrow to attend a luncheon and pay respects to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

Before he returns to headquarters in Edmonton, it is expected he will inspect training progress of the 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Work Point Barracks.

He will be accompanied by Brig. J. W. Bishop, B.C. area commander.

Troops Return
From Floods

Nearly 100 regular army soldiers of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, returned here yesterday from the flood-stricken Duncan-Cowichan district where they spent two days helping officials control the rampaging Cowichan River.

Mayor Raps Blanshard Deal

City Gets Worst
Of Street Deals

Mayor Percy Scurrah yesterday attacked legislation under which B.C. will pay for extension of Blanshard Street in Saanich but not in Victoria.

Blanshard must be extended to join the Patricia Bay Highway to relieve pressure on Douglas, the mayor told the Kiwanis Club, and "to do this job will be very expensive. We have two or three alternative ideas developed, and it will cost anywhere from $400,000 to $800,000 to complete our plans."

But, he said, although the government pays 100 per cent of building and maintaining highways, this highway on reaching the boundary of the city, "becomes the responsibility of the city, 100 per cent."

B.C. did give the city $67,000

last year to aid in developing and maintaining arterial highways, he said, but that "is peanuts compared with the amount of money needed for the development of Blanshard."

Smaller municipalities, Mayor Scurrah said, "get a much better deal from the government than do the cities. The government pays 50 per cent of the cost of constructing secondary roads within municipalities, and 40 per cent toward their maintenance." He urged revision of the Highway Act to help cities.

Creek-Siders Fail
To Convince City

A petition apparently failed to convince city council public works committee yesterday that a section of Bowker Creek along Doncaster north of Hillside should be next to be enclosed.

"We feel very bad about it," said Mrs. R. W. Rogers, 3044 Doncaster, a leader among 162 petitioners who described the stretch of Bowker as a "terrific hazard" and highly unsanitary. However, the committee asked city engineer James Garnett to prepare a report on his specific proposals for this year, and Mrs. Rogers said she would be back next year.

mentioned that "if they make a start and keep it up, it may not be so bad."

Mr. Garnett said he hopes to do some work on the creek this year around North Dairy Road, but that the next enclosure of the creek he plans to recommend will be south of Hillside.

Bruce Lowther, 1536 Edgeware, appearing for the petitioners, said more children live near the creek north of Hillside than south. He cited instances of toddlers falling into it and coming out alive, but, he said, "the next may not."

Bomb Washes Ashore

A practice mortar bomb floating off Ogden Point breakwater was spotted yesterday by Randy Mangelsen, 10, 290 Dallas. The bomb beached at the turn of the tide and he called the police who notified the Navy. It was removed by PO G. J. McLean, 426 Tribune Crescent, Belmont, and a naval driver.

Colwood Chosen
For Night Tattoo

Colwood fairgrounds have been picked for Victoria's proposed centennial searchlight tattoo, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said last night, because a crowd of 20,000 at each performance is needed to make it pay.

Ald. Edgelow, outgoing chairman of Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee, said member organizations agreed at the annual meeting last night to accept responsibility for centennial events in 1962.

The move was suggested by Mayor Percy Scurrah. Joseph Wright, vice-chairman for the past two years, was elected to succeed Ald. Edgelow. New vice-chairman is E. A. MacFayden.

Ald. Edgelow, who has headed the committee for the past four years, said following the meeting that incidental costs alone were estimated at $10,000 for staging of a searchlight tattoo. In addition there would be costs of constructing bleachers, installing lights and other facilities at the Colwood fairgrounds.

Colonist colleague Ted Shackelford told the other day that an encyclopedia representative had phoned him and intimated that he wished to present a 24-volume set of books to him for "publicity" purposes.

He asked to drop around on Sunday to explain the deal.

Ted expressed considerable amazement that such an offer had been made but said yes, he'd give his right arm for a set of the encyclopedia—one of the best known in the business.

THE COLUMN was on hand when the salesman called. His name doesn't really matter because I have since learned that the sales pitch is a pretty standard one for encyclopedia salesmen.

It begins with the salesman rolling out a folder showing the backs of 24 volumes and a set of 10 "year books" which he says are to be included in the 10-year plan.

He shows a list of extra booklets given if you submit the names of four or more other friends who may be interested in such a deal. And there are 30 coupons—each one of which is valued at $3 and may be sent in with any request for extra information on subjects other than medical, legal or investment matters.

"Of course, if you have queries on such matters we suggest you see your doctor or lawyer," explains the salesman with a grin.

Now, what do you think all this is worth? Let's see. The value of the 24 volumes, he says, is $791.50, the research coupons are worth another $250, and the year books are valued at $70—making a grand total of $1,111.50.

But after all, this is a special publicity deal.

Firstly, you will have the books displayed in your home ("and word-of-mouth advertising is best, you know," then you write us a letter of appreciation, and give us the names of four of your friends who may be interested in such an offer.

received a free copy merely for writing a testimonial.

"Mr. Martin has a set, does he?" asked Ted.

"Er, yes," answered the salesman.

"There's absolutely not a word of truth in it," said Health Minister Martin when I checked. "This person called on me and I see now what he was up to. He didn't care if I bought a copy or not. He just wanted to use my name. If he doesn't stop I'm going to get the authorities onto him!"

"How did you get my name?" asked Ted.

He wouldn't say but pointed out that he had a letter supporting the offer written by a John Barkham who worked at Victoria Press.

"I HAVEN'T GOT his letter with me right now but I'm sure he works there somewhere," said the salesman.

(There is no John Barkham at Victoria Press but a writer with that name is employed by the Saturday Review of Literature and some of his book reviews are occasionally published in the Colonist.)

Ted reminded the salesman that there had been an intimation that he would be given the encyclopedia. The salesman said Ted must have misinterpreted what had been said, that there had to be a small financial arrangement in order to separate the "sincere" people from those who would not appreciate such an offer.

"Well," said the salesman, "could you afford $49.50 a year?"

When Ted said yes the salesman said something about a credit report and actually the 10-year deal, which involved a lot of bookwork, was only for those who couldn't afford to pay more. The company really wanted it paid off over 30 months at $12 a month (and a small bookkeeping charge of $1 a month extra).

Ted said he wanted to talk it over with his wife but the salesman produced his identification papers which said he could not make a second call.

"You'll need a bookcase," he said. "I'll give you this one (displaying a picture) which is worth $37.50 . . . if you make up your mind in the next 10 minutes."

"Well, if I call you, I'm not actually having you make a second visit," said Ted.

"That's true," said the salesman, "but please call me before 5 p.m."

And that's the special "publicity deal" being offered—the lowest price of $300 is almost identical to what a set of the encyclopedia can be bought for in a store.

Garden Notes

Spring Into Action

By M. V. CHESTNUT, FRAS.

The garden isn't a particularly inviting place to work at this season of the year, and there is a strong temptation to shirk any outdoor work, spending the time browsing through the new seed catalogues in front of a blazing log fire.

Actually, there isn't very much work of a constructive nature you can do outdoors. You can't go messing around with the soil while it is soggy wet without doing serious damage to its texture. There is one job, however, which must be done, the spraying of your peach trees.

The spores of peach leaf curl disease are everywhere around us and, unless preventive spraying is done early in the year, before the bud tips open, you haven't a chance of healthy foliage on your trees next summer. I doubt very much if there is a single unsprayed tree on Vancouver Island which doesn't become infected with this loathsome disease.

This trouble is so common I imagine every gardener hereabouts has seen its disastrous effect. The tree blossoms and leaf buds normally but soon after the leaves reach their full size they become swollen, distorled and curled, with great reddish blisters all over them.

Later, the red coloring in the leaf gradually changes as the fungus infection produces its spores, and the leaf surface becomes covered with a whitish deposit, something like a bad case of mildew. Twigs and fruit are affected and the tree loses all its leaves in early summer, and without foliage, it cannot manufacture any food for its tissues.

While your infected peach tree may succeed in pushing out a second crop of foliage, it can do this only at the expense of its inner resources, and it is terribly weakened by the effort. Eventually, without help, the tree is bound to die.

Once the symptoms appear, it is far too late to do anything about it. By that time, the disease is well down within the tissues of the leaves where no spray can reach it. The only time you can take any effective action is before the bud tips open in the spring—and remember, the peach starts into growth far earlier than apples and pears.

One difficulty is to catch a good spell of weather for this important spray job. You can't spray during a rainy period, for this would dilute and wash away the spray before it could get in its cleansing action, and a windy day isn't much better. What we need then is a calm, clear, sunny day occurring before the bud tips open and, for those of us who work in offices and shops, this ideal weather must fall on a weekend.

Such fine weekends are not too common at this season of the year, so it is wise to have everything on hand ready to take advantage of any break that comes along. Buy your spray now and make sure the sprayer is in good working condition.

Any good fungicidal spray can be used on any of the all-purpose orchard sprays which contain a fungicide. Lime sulphur does a good job, mixing the powdered form at the rate of 10 heaping tablespoons per gallon. Apply thoroughly, making sure that every single bud on your tree is drenched and dripping.

I should point out that lime sulphur and most of the orchard sprays will discolor paint and stucco so, if your tree is trained against a house wall, you had better spread some papers behind it to protect the surface or switch to a non-staining spray such as Later's Garden Fungicide.

Flesh Weighed

How Much Fat Is Too Much?

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new idea promises to solve a longstanding scientific problem. How can you find out just how much fat there is on any given woman or man?

Obesity is a common North American trait. But it is not healthy to be obese. This makes obesity a big public health interest. The demand on science to determine how much fat is too much fat has been incessant. To determine that you first must determine the total amounts of fat contained in large numbers of individuals. The methods for doing so which now are in use are unsatisfactory because their results are inexact.

Rather than determining the total amounts of fat, determine the total amounts of lean flesh, argued three scientists of the University of Rochester, N.Y. Then you could subtract the weight of the lean from total body weight and come up with the weight of the fat.

Measuring the lean sounds as difficult as measuring the fat. But it isn't—at least not theoretically, according to this new idea produced by Gilbert Forbes, James Rallup and John Hursh.

Potassium is a constituent of just about everything, including people. There are reasons for believing it is found only in the lean flesh, never in fat, and the amount in the lean is always constant. This has been demonstrated as true for the cat, rabbit and pig and if it isn't true for human beings it would be surprising.

Now, this metallic element is always evenly mixed with its own radioactive isotope, potassium-40. Knowing the ratio of radioactive potassium to non-radioactive potassium and knowing the constant rate of potassium in lean flesh, the measuring of lean body weight becomes a matter of measuring the radioactive potassium.

This the scientists did, by measuring the whole-body radiation coming from eight females aged 1 to 33 and 42 males aged 11 to 44. They were of all shapes from the quite lean to the quite plump. Indeed, the scientists said, some gave the "impression" of being obese.

They were also measured for content by the two commonly used methods. Both are based on mathematical formulas arrived at statistically and neither is considered to be precisely accurate. One is to measure the thickness of a fat fold with calipers. The other is to derive a ratio from a comparison of body weight with height.

The totals obtained by measuring potassium-40 radiation compared well with the totals produced by these other methods. The assumption, of course, was that the potassium-40 totals were precise. The work was reported to the American Association for the advancement of science.

All this is important scientifically because the human body cannot operate without some fat, since fat serves body chemistry as storage depots for vitally needed raw materials. Being too fat has its opposite, since you may be too lean. One is as unhealthy as the other.

The new measurements confirmed scientific deductions that the female body normally contains more fat than the male. The scientists calculated that fat totalled 24 to 67 per cent of their females but 16 to 48 per cent of their males.

Hollywood Today

Slanting Baby-Blue Orbs

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Cary Grant has asked Carolyn Jones to slant those big baby-blue orbs of hers to play his Chinese wife in "One Arabian Wife," with Cary set to play a charming swindler. . . . This is Carolyn's year for going oriental. Hal Wallis, to whom she owes one picture, will test her for the Japanese girl opposite Laurence Harvey in "The Girl from Tamika."

Van Johnson believes it's all set for him to be a success in the London stage version of "The Music Man." How does he know? A crystal ball gazer told him so. For Van's sake I hope the lady is right. Johnson has been guessing wrong in recent years—he refused The Untouchables TV series, and said no to "Damn Yankees" and "Pajama Game."

Bobby Darin has decided that his career and wife Sandra Dee's shall forevermore separate. "We want our marriage to last," said the wise Miss Dee on the set of her new movie, "Tammy Tell Me True." "And the best formula is to keep our marriage apart from our work." Methinks I hear the voice of Darin.

"Tammy" producer Ross Hunter is acting as his own technical adviser in the classroom scenes with Sandra Dee and John Gavin. Before coming to Hollywood as an actor, Ross was an English teacher at Glenville High School in Cleveland, O.

Twenty-year-old Sal Mineo is a growing actor in more ways than one. He gained an inch in height during the filming of "Exodus" in Israel and Cyprus.

Mr. Alec Guinness swears it happened. He was in a taxi when the driver asked him "Are you David Niven?" He was sorry, but he wasn't. "I bet you wish you were," said the cabbie consolingly. Guinness, who did not reveal his identity to the driver, has had a lot of fun telling the story.

By the way, top Hollywood stars who make Switzerland their bank address are worried because near-president John Kennedy is very much aware of the situation and, it's hoped, will put a stop to the tax dodging.

Robert Horton, Tony Dow and Anthony George are one, two, three in the fan-mail count at Revue Studios. Tony plays the 15-year-old Wally in Leave It to Beaver. Mr. George's contract for Cheekmate was picked up three months in advance with the same kind of deal Horton has—to take time off every six weeks for outside TV guestings.

Much Kennedy Can Do

Welfare Congress or Roadblock?

This is the third of a series of articles on the plans and problems of the Kennedy administration.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—History may be the tag of "the welfare Congress" on the 87th meeting of the United States legislators if President-elect John Kennedy gets his way.

In advance of its actual submission after his inauguration, Kennedy's legislative program is taking shape as one aimed at bettering the economic and social status of millions of Americans.

While he hasn't laid down any specific priorities, Kennedy has said he wants speedy action on measures to provide medical care for the aged, aid for education, housing, minimum wages and aid for chronically depressed areas.

The president-elect has talked of easing interest rates, revising the labor laws, spurring economic development and expanding national resources (civil rights he is tied to a platform declaration for congress).

In the controversial field of aional passage of a measure

Appointments Stress Night Class Growth

School trustees have given official recognition to the speed with which enrollments in Greater Victoria school board's evening classes are growing.

The board approved appointments of John H. Dalgleish as director of education and W. Stewart Gibson as supervisor of technical, vocational and industrial arts education.

It also agreed that a vice-principal be appointed to take over some of the load carried by night school principal Alan Batey. The appointment, expected within a few weeks, will be effective Aug. 1.

In other business trustees:

to clothe the attorney-general-to-be, his brother Robert, with authority to bring federal injunction suits to enforce school desegregation.

This and some other proposals face tough and possibly successful opposition in a Congress the Democrats nominally control but where a coalition of conservatives of both parties has a great deal to say about the final form of legislation.

Republicans are lining up their forces to battle an expected Kennedy recommendation for an increase in the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour, with an expansion of coverage to another 5,000,000 people, mostly in the retail trades.

Outside of Congress, Kennedy has said there is much a president can do by the stroke of a pen, such as ending segregation in federal housing programs, furnishing moral leadership and calling a conference of southern moderates to recommend measures for civil rights progress.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: People are no good. It took me 61 years to find it out. I built this business from the ground up. I have 175 employees and about 80 per cent are men, the rest are women. For Thanksgiving I arranged with one of the country's finest turkey growers to send 175 choice birds. They were packed individually and sent to each of my employees. This cost $840.

Do you know how many people thanked me? Four. That's how many. Two wrote notes and the other two bumped into me in the hall. I'm so burned up I've decided never to go out of my way to be nice to people again. This whole thing has made me so mad I've had a headache every day for two weeks.

I don't want any advice. I just want you to know what people are really like. — SMARTENED UP.

Dear Remarkable: One of the hazards of writing me is that people sometimes get advice even when they don't ask for it.

If you want to find gratitude look in the dictionary. The reward that comes from giving is the warm feeling it gives the giver. Don't look for satisfaction beyond that. If people seem ungrateful — so what? Now forget about it or those birds are going to cost a lot more than $840. They'll make you sick.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't go anywhere else with this problem and I can't sign my name. You'll know why in a minute. I'm 29, happily married, and have a fine family. Two years ago I took this job as representative for a national organization. I like my work, make good money and there's a future here if I stay. The trouble is the branch manager's wife is after me. This woman is 41, has plenty of money and time on her hands. She tells me her children don't need her any more, her husband bores her and she must have an outside interest to keep her stimulated. I work at the office two evenings a week and she always seems to know which evenings are. She shows up and sits on my desk for hours at a time and I can't do my work.

I'm scared to death her husband may get wind of this. My wife kids me a little but she has no idea the woman is making serious passes. I don't want to leave my job. What shall I do? — WITHOUT ANSWER.

Dear Without: Tell this woman that she's threatening your job and jeopardizing her marriage. If you make it abundantly clear that she's also wasting her time she'd be a moron to continue the chase. When you work evenings invite your wife to come along "just for her company." It's worth the price of a sitter. If the femme fatale bumps into

Symphony Ball Plans Discussed

Arrangements for the annual symphony ball were finalized at the recent meeting of the women's committee to the Victoria Symphony Society held at the home of Mrs. J. Barracough, 2530 Lansdowne. The ball will be held at the Empress Hotel on Feb. 17.

Mrs. J. W. Cantillon reported that tickets would be limited as the ball will be cabaret style.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. W. Cobbald and daughter, Anne-Marie, were there from Shawnigan Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Kerr, from Vancouver.

Calgary Visitors

Mrs. Russel Bullied is visiting in town, guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chudleigh, Joan Crescent. Mrs. Bullied is accompanied by her small three-year-old son, Jeffrey.

Baby Receives Names

At a ceremony in Knox Presbyterian Church, Sooke, this Sunday, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Reiben received the names Shelley Darlene. Dr. E. A. Wright performed the christening ceremony, after which the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sullivan, entertained relatives and friends at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Arden, maternal great-grandparents, West Coast Road, were unable to attend.

Silver Anniversary Party

A surprise reception was held Friday, Jan. 13, 1961, at the Gorge Vale Golf Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Carlow, of 37 Macquinn Street on their 25th wedding anniversary, by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Darnell and son Mr. William D. Carlow.

A white carnation and silver ribbon corsage was presented to Mrs. Carlow with a matching boutonniere to Mr. Carlow. A toast was proposed by Mr. John D. Carlow, brother, following which a reception line was formed by the many guests. An anniversary cake surrounded by many assorted gifts formed a gaily decorated table. A cold buffet supper was served later in the evening.

Dancing was led by Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Carlow with the Anniversary Waltz.

Invited guests were: Mrs. M. I. McIlmoy, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Carlow, Mr. and Mrs. B. Carlow, Mr. and Mrs. D. Carlow, Mr. and Mrs. J. McColl, Mr. and Mrs. R. Carlow, Mr. and Mrs. K. Victoria Magic Circle held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erni Crookford, 49 Knollwood. After a business meeting, a magic show, movies and slides were the entertainment. Refreshments were served to guests who included Mr. and Mrs. Palle Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Art Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Girvin, Mr. and Mrs. Don Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Rose Simons and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Eckdahl.

Rotary Annex

More Than $600 For Charities

The annual meeting and installation of officers of the Rotary Annex took place at the Dominion Hotel's Terra Cotta Room recently, when Mrs. T. Morrison, president welcomed members and guests. Annual reports were read by Mrs. Morrison, secretary, Mrs. W. Osborn and treasurer, Mrs. C. Brown.

Reports of the Christmas assistance project showed that five hampers at a cost of approximately $100 were delivered to needy folk and cigarettes and tobacco were distributed to the inmates of the Mountain View Home on behalf of the auxiliary by Mrs. P. Scurrah.

The reports also showed that in all, $636 was spent on the charitable interests of the Rotary Annex. This included assistance to the Pastime Centre in the purchase of a projector, donations of $100 to the Community Chest, $50 to the Gorge Road Hospital.

Over $235 was spent on the upkeep of the cottage at Sunshine Camp and a further donation made for furnishings for the staff house at Sunshine Camp.

Officers installed by Mrs. M. Greene, for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. T. Morrison; first vice-president, Mrs. S. Love; second vice-president, Mrs. R. Upward; secretary, Mrs. W. Turner; treasurer, Mrs. J. Coles.

Executive officers are: one-year term; Mrs. M. Green, Mrs. J. House, Mrs. E. Mallet, Mrs. L. Morrison. Two-year term: Mrs. A. Kent, Mrs. J. Tybirk, Mrs. E. Gillist, Mrs. J. Dickson.

The new president was presented with a corsage by the installing officer and thanked for her previous year's good work. Mrs. Morrison in turn thanked Mrs. Greene and the executive officers for their cooperation and support.

It was reported that letters of thanks for $10 in books had been received from the chapter's adopted school at Kokish and that hampers to the value of $67 were delivered during the festive season. A small radio valued at $15 was given to a shut-in.

The chapter's annual meeting will be held at a luncheon at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Friday, Feb. 3.

$2,000,000 Mystery

Why Did She Take It? Where Did It Go?

SHELDON, Iowa (AP) — Where did the money go? Why did she take it?

A dumbfounded Iowa community, which awoke Tuesday to find one of its respected banks closed and a prominent citizen in jail for embezzling $2,000,000, could only wonder the answers.

The answers apparently remain with Mrs. Bernice Geiger, 58, a conservative—almost shy—assistant cashier and board member of the Sheldon National Bank.

A routine audit by federal examiners Monday night turned up the alleged shortages at the bank.

Then District Attorney F. E. Van Alstine said at Sioux City that Mrs. Geiger admitted embezzling $2,126,859, one of the largest amounts ever taken in U.S. banking history.

William Cray, an assistant district attorney, said it had not been determined how she manipulated the embezzlement or how she spent the money. It apparently was taken over a long period of time, he said.

Mrs. Geiger's bond was set at $10,000. She did not immediately make bail.

Indian Artist Talks Tonight

Well-known Indian artist George Clutesi of the Feshat Band at Alberni will lecture tonight on northwest Indian art and its relation to tribal life. The lecture, open to the public, will be at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery at 8:30 p.m.

Show Business

When Hugh O'Brian first started his Wyatt Earp TV series, he was sent to Oklahoma on a personal appearance tour. His agent cautioned him to be careful what he said about Wyatt, explaining, "He's a hero in Oklahoma. When you speak about him, do so with reverence."

'Bootleggers' Paradise' Still Seeks Liquor Store

A three-man delegation from Alert Bay yesterday came to Victoria to ask for a liquor store for the small island community which they described as "the bootleggers' paradise."

"We've been asking for a liquor store for 20 years but somehow the application always has been pigeonholed."

Residents of the community who want liquor can either buy it from one of eight bootleggers or send away to the B.C. liquor store in Vancouver and wait a week.

Perhaps they make a lot of homebrew up there? "Not at the present price of sugar," said Mr. Jancowski. During the month of December, 190 cases of liquor, not counting beer, were landed at the township of Alert Bay to fill the needs of thirty residents.

"We've been waiting 20 years," said legal counsel J. D. Williams. "We're sick of writing letters so we decided to come down and we're going to wait here until we get it."

Wonder Drug Worries U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has asked the National Research Council to study the advisability of stiffer regulations on use of the wonder drug, chloromycetin.

The agency is concerned about reports some doctors use the drug "rather promiscuously" in cases where safer antibiotics would be as effective.

They're due to see Attorney General Robert Bonner in the next day or so.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra will provide a preview for Vancouver's International Festival this summer.

The festival society has announced Mr. Bernstein and the 110-piece orchestra will play at Exhibition Gardens April 22. The festival proper opens in July with the international film festival and colorful military tattoo.

Magazine Probe

O'Leary vs. Luce

OTTAWA (CP)—The chairman of Canada's royal commission on publications hammered Tuesday at the theme that there can be no true "Canadian opinion" in Canadian magazines without ownership owing allegiance to this country.

In stating and restating this, Gratian O'Leary made a run-by-rung climb up the executive ladder of Time magazine to a confrontation with editor-in-chief Henry Luce.

The vital role of the Canadian periodical, he said, is that of "discussing, discussing, debating" the regional, sectional and provincial problems of Canada.

Mr. O'Leary quoted a Canadian editor as saying Canada cannot survive as a nation unless it has a national conscience. Mr. Luce said he would agree with that.

Mr. Luce said he does not consider Time a Canadian magazine despite its Canadian edition. Nonetheless, it serves Canada and Canadians have proved they want it by buying more than 200,000 copies a week.

It was up to Canadian periodicals to fulfil a "prophetic function," to apply the needs of criticism where it is needed most.

Several local dignitaries met Hugh at the airport and asked him about his work in Hollywood. Soberly, Hugh took off his 10-gallon hat, "I'm very fortunate. I've been chosen to play Wyatt Earp on television."

There was a moment's silence before one of the natives asked politely, "Who's he?"

Boy Trapped Two Days

TAHOLAH, Wash. (AP)—A seven-year-old boy was found alive Tuesday after being pinned nearly 2½ days under a wrecked station wagon in which his father was killed.

Highway workers who heard Michael Mason's cries and removed him from the car, which had rolled down a steep bank along a wooded road. The father was Thomas Lloyd Mason, 30, of Tacoma.

Mayor Opposes Police Pay Hikes

Mayor Percy Scurrell is "definitely opposed to any increases whatsoever" in police pay, he said yesterday, "and that applies to all civic staffs."

This year, he said, "is no year to ask for any increases. City employees have guaranteed wages the year round, with generous holidays, sick leave and superannuation, and assurance of continued employment."

"In my opinion they have good jobs, and with unemployment the way it is, and with the difficulties many people are having paying their taxes, I don't believe wage increases this year are justified."

Saanich Police Stand Pat

Saanich police are not seeking any pay raise for 1961, police commission was told yesterday.

Reeve George Chatterton said last night the commission readily agreed to a request from the police union that overtime would take the form of time-and-a-half off when officers could be spared from duty. Otherwise it would be paid at straight time.

"The commission commended the police union for its reasonable attitude," Reeve Chatterton said, "and gave the assurance that the position taken would stand the force in good stead in the long run."

Yanks 'Skip' B.C. Creditors

OTTAWA (CP)—Small United States owners of lumber companies in British Columbia who run out on their unpaid bills were called blighters and rascals in the Commons yesterday by H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West).

He said there ought to be a law requiring them to face their creditors in Canada.

Mr. Herridge said several U.S.-owned lumber companies had failed and the owners "led to the United States," leaving employees and creditors unpaid.

He asked External Affairs Minister Green as acting prime minister whether something could not be done to protect B.C. residents.

MATTER FOR B.C.

Mr. Green said it was a matter for the B.C. courts to handle.

"The rascals have run off to the United States," Mr. Herridge said. "There is no blighter to serve the notice on."

Mr. Green, a lawyer, said court orders could be made by substitute service, and Mr. Herridge should consult a lawyer.

"That's what he's doing," said Hazen Argue, CCF leader.

Tricky Jack Makes Tories Eat Words

OTTAWA (CP)—J. W. (Jack) Pickersgill stung the Conservative backbenchers into temporary silence Tuesday on unemployment.

Then he picked up a document from his Commons desk and said he intended to follow his notes closely while giving

Liberal 'Lurch to Left' Ridiculed by Tories

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives have found a convenient platform from which to challenge the Liberals' publicity gains in their big national rally last week.

It is provided by the Commons budget debate, which a number of Conservative members have used to ridicule decisions taken at the rally.

Tuesday taunted the Liberals with such remarks as "same old hackneyed story" and "thrashing of the old straw."

C. A. Best (PC—Halton) said newspapermen at the rally wondered if the Liberal party lurched to the left, lurched to the left or was dragged skyward.

"All that can be said is that it went off in all directions and in a lot of dust."

Doctor Found Asleep Near Body of Patient

MOSSBANK, Sask. (CP)—A 40-year-old man was reported by RCMP to have been found dead Tuesday in the living quarters of a Mossbank physician.

Police said they found the body of Mathew Stanley Demich of Wood Mountain when they were called to the quarters, adjoining the doctor's office, by A. M. Pearson of Fir Mountain. They said there was an incision in the chest.

RCMP said they found Dr. D. Jamieson in a "deep sleep." He was taken to hospital.

Police said Pearson told them Demich went to the doctor for treatment. Pearson told police he fell asleep in the quarters early Tuesday and when he awoke he found Demich dead and Dr. Jamieson in a "deep sleep."

RCMP said investigation was continuing. Mossbank is 70 miles southwest of Regina.

Williston Just Can't Believe Federal Power Price Tag

By PETER BRUTON

Lands Minister Ray Williston said yesterday he has been unable to find any "responsible" engineer who would support federal government claims that Columbia River power could be delivered to Vancouver for less than four mills. (See also page 5.)

"We can't find out how they arrive at their figures," said Mr. Williston.

Key to the question was how cheap money for the huge $450,000,000 project could be borrowed. The figure of 3.77 mills for Columbia power has been consistently mentioned as a firm cost by the federal government for many months now.

Mr. Williston said yesterday that the actual price would not really be known until all engineering studies had been completed.

"I don't think people should be led into any type of situation that in fact won't materialize as a result of construction," he stated.

'Broken Heart' Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—Charles Hemstead, well-known Toronto hotel owner and horseman, died Tuesday night as he finished supper in his suburban York Township home.

His doctor blamed a "broken heart."

"He was a very kind and gentle man and the thought of persons dying in the hotel was an extra crushing blow in the face of his other losses," said Dr. R. W. Royden.

Two men died Monday when fire destroyed the $70,000 Carson Hotel. Mr. Hemstead's last major holding. Two weeks ago Hemstead's $500,000 restaurant was lost in a blaze that also destroyed the Canadian National Exhibition's Manufacturers Building.

KING'S PLATE WINNER

Only half of the loss was covered by insurance.

He owned a 30-horse racing stable at nearby Malton. His greatest moment in racing came in 1943 when his horse Paolita won the King's Plate.

He was known as "Mr. Lucky."

U.S. Pipe Bid Hit As Unmitigated Gall

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF MP Harold Winch accused a government supporter Tuesday of "unmitigated gall" in proposing that Parliament incorporate a pipeline company which would be controlled by Americans.

He made the accusation in the Commons during debate on a private member's bill for the incorporation of Aurora Pipe Line Company.

The MP for Vancouver East said the bill was being sponsored by Eldon Woollams (PC—Bow River) although the federal government wanted Canada's resources to be exploited by companies under Canadian control.

"I don't understand how a Tory could sponsor such a bill," Mr. Winch said.

The Aurora company would be owned by Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Company Limited of Calgary, 68 per cent of which is owned by the Continental Oil Company of the United States.

Mr. Winch said that two years ago Parliament approved the incorporation of Foothills Pipe Line Company, a Canadian-owned firm, to act as a common carrier for shipment within Alberta of natural gas byproducts destined for export.

But Parliament now was being asked to incorporate a company which would "skim off the easy cream" from southern Alberta only.

Vosburgh Calm In Denial

BEDFORD, Que. (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday night found Abel Vosburgh criminally responsible for the deaths of his wife Marjorie and 11 of their 15 children.

The jury minutes earlier had ruled there was criminal negligence in the wife's death.

Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux said Vosburgh, 63, an unemployed laborer, will be taken to nearby Aroostook today to be charged with murder.

In Quebec an inquest must hand down a verdict before any charges can be laid.

TINY SHACK

Bodies of Mrs. Vosburgh and the children were found in the ruins of their tiny shack after a fire Dec. 29.

During the testimony, Vosburgh calmly denied he held the door closed from the outside while flames destroyed the shack.

OIL DENIED

He also denied he speeded fuel oil on the floor so the fire would spread quickly.

He took the stand minutes after his son Irving, 18, testified his father had threatened to kill his mother "but I don't know if he meant it."

RIEN BROKEN

Irving said his parents fought about once a month, Vosburgh hitting his wife with a stick of firewood. Once, he broke some ribs.

Vosburgh said he was awakened about 2 a.m. by the flames, called his wife and ran outside to a pump to try to fight the blaze. He heard her call out as he ran outside.

Fall Kills Nanaimo Resident

NANAIMO—A man who suffered a fall on a Nanaimo street over the weekend has succumbed to his injuries. Sixty-year-old Alfred Alexander Boyd died in Nanaimo General Hospital yesterday. RCMP said Boyd was found lying on a sidewalk on Haliburton Street in the south end of the city Saturday night and, when examined by hospital authorities, was found to have a fractured skull. No date has been set for an inquest.

Alberni Budget Rises

ALBERNI — A provisional budget of $354,516 was adopted by the Alberni council with the understanding that the adoption did not authorize action on specific projects.

It was made clear by Ald. T. S. Barnett that in passing the tentative estimates, council was adopting the schedule of amounts set out for various departments, but was not giving authority to proceed on the various projects contained in the schedule.

The total in the budget is $6,426 above that of last year's final budget.

Estimated revenue from taxes is up some $10,000 from last year at $205,000. Highest single item in the estimates is $85,000 for education, which compares with $77,996 in the 1960 budget, while public works expenditures are estimated at $73,498, which is within $155 of the amount estimated last year.

Debt charges are down from $65,270 to $64,680. Council is estimating expenditure of $14,800 for health and welfare compared to the 1960 estimate of $12,500.

Torrent Scatters Eggs

Storm Aftermath

Generation Of Salmon Decimated

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

Sunday rains, which turned Goldstream into a wild, roaring river which overflowed its banks at several points and dredged out new courses, may have killed off more than 40 per cent of this fall's coho and chum salmon spawn.

In addition, thousands and thousands of coho fingerlings from the 1959 spawn, which were still in the river and not scheduled to enter the ocean until June or July, may have been stranded in receding flood pools, or washed to sea in the raging torrent.

FELT FOR YEARS
Full effect of Sunday's damage will be felt in 1963 for coho salmon and in 1964 for chum salmon.

Damage was undoubtedly repeated in all island and mainland streams to a greater or lesser degree—the bigger the river the less the damage is likely to be felt.

Effect on spring salmon runs from the San Juan, Sooke and other rivers will be felt in 1964 and 1965 when the salmon will be returning to their spawning streams.

HINTOBYN'S WORST
Sunday's floods could mean that the 1963 and 1964 salmon fishing years will go down as the worst in history.

And to make matters worse flash floods Dec. 7 and 8 in 1956 hit the same cycle-run of chum salmon as were hit in Sunday's flooding. The new floods could almost wipe out the chum run from this area.

CONDUCT SURVEY
Yesterday, the Colonist, in company with federal fisheries officer Harry Burrow, conducted a preliminary survey of the effect of Goldstream flooding.

Fisheries officers will conduct more thorough surveys of damage on all rivers and streams, as soon as waters recede enough to make such surveys practical.

EGGS STRANDED
At Goldstream we found thousands of salmon eggs stranded high and dry in acres of mud. We dug into silt and found more and more eggs.

Some of the eggs were alive and had started to hatch as a result of the mild winter experienced so far. But nothing could be done to save the eggs.

COURSE CHANGED
Coho fingerlings flitted about in pools that would dry up as soon as the winter recedes. The whole course of the river had been changed and spawning beds, that before the floods were quiet stretches, may dry up as the Goldstream takes to its new course.

This year there had been a light to fair run up the Goldstream—about 2,000 chums and 500 coho, which would have laid about 2,800 eggs each.

HIGH HOPES
Fisheries officials had been in high hopes for a bumper return to the sea.

But their hopes faded yesterday as hundreds of seagulls, merganser ducks, kingfishers and water ouzels flitted about the lower reaches gobbling up salmon eggs by the thousands.

CANT BE SAVED
This was nature . . . and nothing could be done to help. We found salmon eggs high and dry as far as 100 feet from the main river.

Not only had the raging river scoured the upper spawning beds, washing the eggs downstream, but it had also carried with it tons of silt which covered the spawning beds in the lower reaches of the Goldstream.

GREAT UPSET
"It is a great upset to us," said Mr. Burrow. "You get a strike like this and there is no salmon to spare. This is why we like to have some salmon in the bank so to speak, and get as many up the river as we can."

Around the Island

Run-Off Control Study Urged In Report to Flood-Hit Alberni

ALBERNI — A study of a flood control program for the city will be made by council in line with a recommendation from city superintendent Robert Waugh in a report on the Sunday morning inundation of an extensive area of Alberni.

Mr. Waugh said that the Somass River had apparently reached its highest level in 25 years. The water first broke out in two areas of the Indian reserve, then flooded through at Mary Street, he said, causing a terrific amount of hardship to Heaslip Road and Alexander Street households.

He said it was impossible to assess the amount of damage but the toll of furnishings, refrigerators and TV sets had been heavy.

CONSULT ENGINEERS

The matter of a flood control program was referred to committee-of-the-whole for consideration after city clerk James Sawyer said that a general report had been made by the department of lands and forests several years ago with a suggestion that consulting engineers be engaged to work out a plan.

The superintendent's report on the storm followed a brief storm in city hall when Mayor Mabel Anderson objected to Ald. T. S. Barnett's request for a report from Mr. Waugh being introduced under new business.

She said it should have come under the heading of reports on the agenda and, if he insisted on bringing the matter up under new business, it should come in the form of a notice of motion to be dealt with next week.

INTERFERENCE CHARGED

When Ald. C. M. Blair supported Ald. Barnett's motion to call for the report, commenting that residents of the city might be interested in hearing it, the mayor accused aldermen of interfering in procedure of the meeting. She told Ald. Blair that he was not "the big white father."

She made a statement expressing thanks and gratitude to all those who had helped on the occasion of the flood and said that it showed that she was giving consideration to the matter.

PARKSVILLE

An addition to Parksville which should prove beneficial is a recently completed $30,000 convention hall added to Island Hall Hotel by proprietors Mrs. Mary Sutherland and Mrs. E. J. Alwood.

The new building has been added to the former playhouse and the convention room measures 36 feet by 56 feet. It is fully soundproof and is easily divided into two rooms with separate entrances by the use of soundproof sliding doors.

As one room it will seat 175 persons.

Above the convention hall have been added two modern bedroom suites. The older part of the building has been converted into an executive office, cloakroom, washrooms, kitchenette and a small lounge.

The project is one of many improvements made to the property in the 14 years since Mrs. Sutherland and Mrs. Alwood purchased it. The hotel has grown from 23 to 49 rooms in that time and is known by visitors to this area from all over the world.

DUNCAN—Duncan's population has jumped nearly 60 per cent in the last 20 years. In figures just released by the chamber of commerce for inclusion in the B.C. Industrial index, the 1960 population is shown as 3,400 persons compared to 2,200 in 1941.

Figures for the surrounding area have increased from 7,203 people in 1941 to 13,700 last year.

NORTH COWICHAN

This municipality has paid for emergency housing for about a dozen families flooded out, but last night was the last for free lodging.

Reeve Donald Morton said that "some accommodation was provided, although the municipality has no legal obligation to do so."

The families were from the Wall sub-division where an estimated 25 families vacated their homes. Reeve Morton said he believes about a third have returned home.

The matter of sewage and drainage for the area that was flooded by Somenos Creek is to be discussed at today's council meeting.

PARKSVILLE—Messages of congratulation from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, and relatives in Scotland and other parts of Canada were among many received by Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bonar of Parksville on the occasion of their diamond wedding anniversary recently. The occasion was celebrated with a family dinner at the Legion Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonar were married in Armadale, West Lothian, Scotland, and have lived for many years in Canada. For some years before moving to Parksville they resided at Stratton in the Fraser Valley. A beautiful floral tribute was received from friends in that district.

Seven of Mr. and Mrs. Bonar's nine children were present at the family gathering as well as some of their grandchildren. The couple have 24 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

ALBERNI—Members of the press were assured at an Alberni council meeting this week that they would not have to wait outside in the rain for council to return to open session from secret committee sessions.

The assurance was given when council received and filed a letter from press and radio representatives asking permission to be allowed to remain in council chambers on occasions when council resolved into committee-of-the-whole with intention of returning to regular session on the same night.

In dealing with the letter, council moved to provide facilities in city hall for reporters to use while waiting for the end of committee-of-the-whole sessions. Previously they had to wait outside.

Greenwood will pipe the haggis-bearers in their tam-o-shanter march around the hall.

Address to the haggis will be given by Jack Rodger, one of the oldest members of the club. Committee in charge includes Mr. Hallinan, Mr. Morrison, Alan McDonald, J. C. Brown, and Stewart Irvine.

NANAIMO—Danger of pollution of the water supply in the central part of Vancouver Island is passed.

Dr. C. J. G. MacKenzie, medical health officer for the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said that now that the waters are receding the main threat is over.

He said that the mid-land area is now out of danger but issued a warning to residents who have their own wells which might have been flooded.

The doctor said that the health centre in Nanaimo will give information to residents who might not be sure of the condition of their water supply.

PORT ALBERNI—Ronald Jarvis Chapman, 39, convicted here last week of breaking and entering, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate W. E. MacLeod to five years in jail.

The magistrate referred to a criminal record dating back to 1942 when he told the accused that he had been given opportunities but they didn't seem to have done him any good.

"You are in the way of becoming a habitual criminal," he said as he passed sentence.

PARKSVILLE—An objective of $1,600 has been set by Parksville Kinmen Club for the annual Mothers' March on Polio which will be held on Jan. 28 commencing at 7 p.m.

This objective is for the whole of School District 68, which covers Parksville, Qualicum and surroundings area. Campaign chairman is Orian Rye, and Kinmen and Kinettes will be assisted by other groups in the district.

ALBERNI—Mayor Mabel Anderson has made a formal request that her voice be not used over the air by Radio Station CJAV without her written consent.

In a letter to CJAV read at a council meeting, she took exception to a recent airing of her voice in a newscast apart from the regular council broadcast.

FULFORD—After an absence of several weeks, Mrs. B. East has returned to her home in Fulford. Mrs. East was visiting relatives in the Haney, B.C. district.

LADYSMITH—Robert Strachan, leader of the Opposition and of the provincial CCF Party will give the address to the immortal memory at the Lady Smith Burns' Club annual supper in Native Sons Hall, Jan. 28. Mrs. Strachan will reply to the toast to the ladies.

President William Hallinan will preside over the event. A fine program of Scottish songs and Highland dancing has been arranged. Dave Morrison will say Selkirk Grace and Jimmy

Colonist colleague Ted Shackelford told the other day that an encyclopedia representative had phoned him and intimated that he wished to present a 24-volume set of books to him for "publicity" purposes.

He asked to drop around on Sunday to explain the deal.

Ted expressed considerable amazement that such an offer had been made but said yes, he'd give his right arm for a set of the encyclopedia—one of the best known in the business.

TEEN COLUMN was on hand when the salesman called. His name doesn't really matter because I have since learned that the sales pitch is a pretty standard one for encyclopedia salesmen.

It begins with the salesman rolling out a folder showing the backs of 24 volumes and a set of 10 "year books" which he says are to be included in the 10-year plan.

He shows a list of extra booklets given if you submit the names of four or more other friends who may be interested in such a deal. And there are 50 coupons—each one of which is valued at $5 and may be sent in with any request for extra information on subjects other than medical, legal or investment matters.

"Of course, if you have queries on such matters we suggest you see your doctor or lawyer," explains the salesman with a grin.

Now, what do you think all this is worth? Let's see.

The value of the 24 volumes, he says is $791.50, the research coupons are worth another $250, and the year books are valued at $70—making a grand total of $1,111.50.

But after all, this is a special publicity deal.

Firstly, you will have the books displayed in your home ("and word-of-mouth advertising is best, you know," then you write us a letter of appreciation, and give us the names of four of your friends who may be interested in such an offer.

"NOW MY FIRM conducted a survey which showed that the average Canadian family spends $49.50 a year on reading material," said the salesman. "This is yours for $49.50."

Ted. "For how many years?" asked Ted.

"Ten," said the salesman. He explains that many prominent people have taken up the offer but added that no person, whether it be Health Minister Eric Martin or a logger received a free copy merely for writing a testimonial.

"Mr. Martin has a set, does he?" asked Ted.

"Er, yes," answered the salesman.

"There's absolutely not a word of truth in it," said Health Minister Martin when I checked. "This person called on me and I see now what he was up to. He didn't care if I bought a copy or not. He just wanted to use my name. If he doesn't stop I'm going to get the authorities onto him!"

"How did you get my name?" asked Ted.

He wouldn't say but pointed out that he had a letter supporting the offer written by a John Barkham who worked at Victoria Press.

"I HAVEN'T GOT his letter with me right now but I'm sure he works there somewhere," said the salesman.

"There is no John Barkham at Victoria Press but a writer with that name is employed by the Saturday Review of Literature and some of his book reviews are occasionally published in the Colonist."

Ted reminded the salesman that there had been an intimation that he would be given the encyclopedia. The salesman said Ted must have misinterpreted what had been said, that there had to be a small financial arrangement in order to separate the "sincere" people from those who would not appreciate such an offer.

"Well," said the salesman, "could you afford $49.50 a year?"

When Ted said yes the salesman said something about a credit report and actually the 10-year deal, which involved a lot of bookwork, was only for those who couldn't afford to pay more. The company really wanted it paid off over 30 months at $12 a month (and a small bookkeeping charge of $1 a month extra).

Ted said he wanted to talk it over with his wife but the salesman produced his identification papers which said he could not make a second call.

"You'll need a bookcase," he said. "I'll give you this one (displaying a picture) which is worth $37.50 . . . if you make up your mind in the next 10 minutes."

"Well, if I call you, I'm not actually having you make a second visit," said Ted.

"That's true," said the salesman, "but please call me before 5 p.m."

And that's the special "publicity deal" being offered—the lowest price of $380 is almost identical to what a set of the encyclopedia can be bought for in a store.

received a free copy merely for writing a testimonial.

"Mr. Martin has a set, does he?" asked Ted.

"Er, yes," answered the salesman.

"There's absolutely not a word of truth in it," said Health Minister Martin when I checked. "This person called on me and I see now what he was up to. He didn't care if I bought a copy or not. He just wanted to use my name. If he doesn't stop I'm going to get the authorities onto him!"

"How did you get my name?" asked Ted.

He wouldn't say but pointed out that he had a letter supporting the offer written by a John Barkham who worked at Victoria Press.

"I HAVEN'T GOT his letter with me right now but I'm sure he works there somewhere," said the salesman.

"There is no John Barkham at Victoria Press but a writer with that name is employed by the Saturday Review of Literature and some of his book reviews are occasionally published in the Colonist."

Ted reminded the salesman that there had been an intimation that he would be given the
